

About the Author

Ira Nirenberg was born in Paterson, New Jersey and was educated in the public school system. He earned his undergraduate degree in Physics from Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, and his Masters Degree in Physics from Kent State University in Ohio.

He has worked as an exploration geophysicist, taught math and physics at three universities, published articles on both math and travel and conducted workshops on math and physics for school teachers. He currently teaches gifted students at Benjamin Franklin High School in New Orleans, Louisiana.

He lives in a small shotgun house with his wife Brenda, a Registered Nurse and eight cats.